The Website I chose to make was one that promoted a popular holiday destination. The destination I chose to base the website on is the Algarve in Portugal. I chose to break the site down into 5 sections:

1. Accommodation: This section focuses on places to stay in different parts of the Algarve.
2. Golf: This section tells people about the wide variety of golf options available throughout the Algarve.
3. Activities: This section lets people know about the many ways they can have fun and relax around the Algarve.
4. Property: This part of the site give people information on buying property in the Algarve.
5. Useful Information: This section provides some general information that people traveling to the Algarve may find useful.

I went for quite a simple design with each page having its own unique colour for the body and the backgrounds of the pages are a sharp white colour which I think gives a good contrast against the bright colours associated with each page.

For the links and buttons throughout the site I used some jquery to enable them to fade out when the user hovers over them.

The various images throughout the site where edited and resized using Photoshop the site logo was also created using Photoshop.
